ASGCA PATRONS

Supporting Education in the Golf Course Industry

ASGCA Patrons support ASGCA members in their efforts to create golf courses – both new and renovated – that are aesthetically pleasing, technically sound, environmentally sensitive and economically viable.

Whether a manufacturer or distributor of golf course products, a golf course builder or provider of a service to support the development and construction process, ASGCA Patrons provide a broad set of solutions useful in many golf course projects.

ASGCA Patrons also support ASGCA and its long-standing efforts to advocate on behalf of the golf course industry, through education and communications about the positive environmental, economic, social and recreational benefits of golf courses. ASGCA and the ASGCA Foundation provide a variety of educational resources to those involved in golf course development, from developers and owners to permitting officials and golfers. Patron support helps ASGCA produce and distribute such landmark publications as “An Environmental Approach to Golf Course Development” and “Building a Practical Golf Facility.” And www.asgca.org is among the best places on the internet for information related to golf course development and renovation.

New ASGCA Patrons are continually being added, so golf course decision-makers are always encouraged to visit www.asgca.org for the most current listing of ASGCA Patrons. Those currently participating in the program are found on pages 23 to 29.

ASGCA is also fortunate to partner with the following companies – Major Partners of ASGCA renovation, water management and environmental educational programming:

2011 ASGCA Annual Meeting – Denver, Colorado

ABOUT ASGCA MEMBERS

The American Society of Golf Course Architects is comprised of North America's leading golf course architects. Each member has gained admission through a rigorous, peer-reviewed evaluation process. Based on training, experience and knowledge of the game, ASGCA members are fully qualified to execute and oversee implementation of golf course plans and specifications to create layouts that exhibit the highest standards and traditions of golf. The ASGCA member counsels in all phases of a project to protect the best interest of the client.

2011-2012 ASGCA Executive Committee:

President: Rick Phelps, ASGCA Vice President: Bob Cupp, ASGCA
Treasurer: Rick Robbins, ASGCA Secretary: Lee Schmidt, ASGCA
Immediate Past President: Erik Larsen, ASGCA

ASGCA Member Experience

In 2011, ASGCA members were surveyed concerning their professional background. The results yielded these impressive averages among members:

- Years as a golf course architect: 29
- New 18-hole courses designed: 42
- 18-hole courses re-designed: 22
- Master Plans created: 71
- Projects touched or consulted: 147
- Nations worked in outside the United States and Canada: 6

ABOUT ASGCA

ASGCA was founded in 1946 by Donald Ross, Robert Trent Jones and 12 other distinguished golf course architects. Since then, ASGCA members have designed, renovated and counseled thousands of golf courses around the world, from layouts that host major golf tournaments to practical courses and alternative facilities that welcome new players.

In order to gain membership in the organization, ASGCA members undergo an extensive, peer-reviewed process that typically requires two years to complete. The average ASGCA member has practiced golf course architecture for more than 25 years and had designed or renovated dozens of layouts. ASGCA members develop detailed plans and specifications to help plan new golf facilities of many types or simply help make existing layouts more playable, technically sound or economically successful.

To assist those interested in building a new course or remodeling an existing one, ASGCA distributes a variety of publications. These include:

- Golf Course Component Life Cycle Chart
- The Q & A Series: Development, Remodeling, Selecting a Golf Course Architect, Master Planning
- Sample Request for Proposal
- Standard Agreement for Golf Course Architectural Services
- Maintenance Cost Factor Flier
- Golf & Water Flier
- Secrets of the Great Golf Course Architects ($30)
- An Environmental Approach to Golf Course Development ($10)
- Excellence Restored: A Guide to Golf Course Renovation ($7.50)

Visit the ASGCA website at www.asgca.org to order these publications, or call 262-786-5960 to order by phone.
