THE BIG THREE FOR MOUNTAIN MISSION KIDS RAISES RECORD $15.1 MILLION

Bristol, VA; June 8, 2010 – "The Big 3" came together to help raise $15,149,183.98 in The Big 3 for the Mountain Mission Kids sponsored by Johnson & Johnson, a 19-hole scramble event in which they competed against 19 different teams of amateur players for the benefit of the Mountain Mission School in Grundy, VA. The event was played over the Bobby Weed-designed Olde Farm Golf Club. The $15.1 million raised is the most ever by a golf tournament in a single day.

The Big 3 for the Mountain Mission Kids was organized by Grundy native Jim McGlothlin, founder of The Olde Farm and a longtime benefactor of the school. The school operates entirely from private donations and efforts from the tournament will help establish a sustained endowment for Mountain Mission School.

"To be able to do this is a testament to the hard work of a lot of dedicated people," said McGlothlin. "It is very rewarding to be able to make this donation to the Mountain Mission School. The work they do there is incredible and is making a huge difference in the lives of many kids."

"The day was spectacular," said Nicklaus. "We go to a lot of places and we raise a lot of money, but I have never seen a group that has absolutely been as philanthropic as you."

"Watching the Big 3 play the course and seeing the results of the participants' cumulative efforts was inspiring," commented Bobby Weed.

A one-hour special about the Mountain Mission School and The Big 3 for the Mountain Mission Kids will air Saturday, July 10 from 2-3:00 p.m. ET prior to the third-round telecast of the PGA TOUR's John Deere Classic on CBS.
